SME Summit & Annual Meeting Los Angeles Convention Center March 28-30, 2006

The Society of Manufacturing Engineers (SME) and its Technical Community Network have announced the 2006 SME Summit & Annual Meeting. This conference will create an exciting and dynamic forum for information exchange, networking, presentations on new applications, and developing research on advanced technology spanning the entire manufacturing discipline. Features include: annual meeting components, tours, keynotes, receptions, group lunches, chapter officer & member consultant training and complimentary attendance to the WESTEC exposition.

WESTEC 2006 Exposition and Conference March 27-30, 2006

At WESTEC, attendees will find the latest technologies and applications and learn how to automate their operations. Exhibitors meet with thousands of manufactures looking to upgrade their equipment and build long-term business relationships. In 2006, the upgraded and expanded WESTEC is more than a tradeshow - it's a Total Manufacturing Experience.

In Case You Missed It

The December 13 meeting was one of the best that this newsletter editor has ever attended. Gene Griffin of Capital Planning Systems presented an interesting investment planning discussion using a self-developed Excel program that allowed for a variety of real life scenarios.

Additionally, every attendee received a present. Some guests received more than one present. You also missed out on a tape of the famous light show at Mason, Ohio and Porky Pig's rendition of Blue Christmas.
